

Should have put it into the record in yesterday's edition that we had our first frost Sunday morning, November 5.

To one not born in the South our long frost-free Autumn is a never-ending wonder. We have about six weeks' more growing weather in the Spring, than they have up North; and as much again in the Fall.

In fact, if we could juggle the Ozarks around a bit to keep Northern winds off our neck we might escape freezing weather completely. As it is, we are vulnerable, though briefly. One frost Sunday morning, and the South bounces back to warm weather.

W. F. Hutchens, Hope man, sends me from Humacao, Puerto Rico, copies of the Spanish-language newspapers down there reporting the "Nationalist" revolution—which hatched up the plot to assassinate President Truman in Washington.

I have the editions of Diario de Puerto Rico for October 31, November 1 and 2, and the pictorial tabloid El Imparcial for November 1. They carry long stories and many photographs on the fighting; and from the back page of Diario de Puerto Rico, which summarizes the news in English, I learn that the government troops have chased the rebels out of their main strongholds, and about 600 of the guerrillas are believed hiding in the hills.

Paragraph from Edgar G. Harris' West Point (Miss.) Times-Leader reports:

"Contemplating the fact that the dog population of the United States increased about 2 million last year, our friend, the Town Wagon, says he seriously doubts if there is a good coon dog in the entire lot."

Probably not. But I rise to defend the inalienable right of every man to the dog of his own choice. I know it is useless to point out to a seasoned hunter how silly it is to specialize in coon dogs; he'll merely aim to hunt coons. He'll merely come back at you with, "Well, what does he hunt?"

But raising a utilitarian dog is a lot of grief. Take the case of the man who loaned his young bird dog out to a friend who was going on his first hunt. The friend came home without a bird. "Had a lot of trouble with your dog," he reported. "He kept stopping and pointing—but we got along all right after I booted him a few times."

Despite our great strides in developing the livestock industry seven southwest Arkansas counties including Hempstead are still apparently considered part of the cotton belt.

The November Review of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis lists Arkansas counties which had a cotton income of half a million dollars or more back in 1944 as still belonging to the cotton belt in 1950; and it includes the following from that section:

Miller, Little River, Hempstead, Nevada, Clark, Lafayette and Columbia.

Exempt are Howard, Ouachita and Union.

Crackdown on Two More Big Time Gamblers

Washington, Nov. 7 (UP)—The senate crime investigating committee cracked down on two more big-time gamblers today and warned the nation's racketeers and hoodlums of a new "get-tough" policy.

Committee spokesman Al Klein told the United Press that Chairman Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., will ask the senate to cite Harry Stromberg, alias "Nig" Rosen, reputed Philadelphia gambling boss, and one of his chief lieutenants, Willie Weisberg, for contempt of congress.

Stromberg and Weisberg refused to answer questions asked by the committee during a closed hearing on Oct. 13.

Harry Russell, whom senate crime investigators described as an associate of Chicago gangsters seeking to "muscle in" on Miami's lucrative rackets, was indicted for contempt of congress on 60 counts by federal grand jury here yesterday.

He surrendered in Miami, Fla., last yesterday and posted $10,000 bond. Assistant U. S. Attorney William Hitz said he would be brought here for trial as soon as possible.

Russell, the first person indicted for contempt of the committee, was cited after refusing to answer many of the senators' questions about his connection with Chicago mobsters and Miami's $50,000,000 a year gambling syndicate. He said any answers might "tend" to incriminate him.

Stromberg and Weisberg, it was learned, also refused to reply on grounds of self-incrimination. The investigators warned they will cite more racketeers and gamblers if they refuse to talk.

Russell also was indicted yesterday by a Miami grand jury. He

Heavy Vote Expected in Arkansas

Little Rock, Nov. 7 (AP)—Today's election day, and just about the only thing that seemed assured in Arkansas was that the Democrats would win.

But on three bitterly-contested referenda, there was no such agreement.

Spokesmen for the opposing sides made the usual pre-election predictions of victory.

But there was no slackening of efforts to sway voters and get supporters to the polls as Arkansas marked the ballots which will decide:

Whether the state continues legal liquor sales—in those counties not already dry by local option—or adopts the "one quart" prohibition law.

Whether there's to be earmarked for school purposes an estimated $32,500,000 annually of the first tax money the state gets.

Whether owners throughout the state will be required to keep livestock under fence against the present system under which fence districts are created by local voting.

There's another referendum measure on the ballot, but while it's attracted some opposition, there's been none of the heated and highly organized for and against campaigns in which other three have been involved. Against campaigns in which the other three have been involved.

This is the one to extend from two to four years the terms of most elective public offices. It won't be effective for two more years, and nobody elected today would be "blanketed in" by the measure.

Governor McMath, who managed to maintain a public silence on the referendum while certain of his administration lieutenants were actively supporting or opposing the school funds measure, predicted victory for the state Democratic ticket yesterday.

That ticket is unopposed except for another referendum, against which Republican Jefferson W. Speck has conducted a vigorous campaign, and Vance Clayton, Democratic incumbent, whom Mrs. Frank McGillicuddy, also a Republican, would oust as state treasurer.

Aside from McMath's prediction of Democratic victory—a safe enough forecast in Arkansas since reconstruction days—the governor said he believed the four-year term proposal—amendment No. 44—would win.

He continued to refuse comment on the other referendum.

The school funds proposals is Amendment No. 41. The proposed stock law is initiated Act No. 1. The proposed prohibition act—which derives its "one quart" designation from the fact that it would set a legal possession limit of that amount of liquor—is initiated Act No. 2.

Today's election apparently was to be the last time that Arkansas voted on seven U. S. representative offices for at least 10 years. The state is due to lose one representative because of a population loss. The seven Democratic incumbents were unopposed for re-election in today's balloting. So was Senator Fulbright, up for re-election.

Pentecostal Church to Start Revival

The First Pentecostal Church, 4th and Ferguson, will start a revival meeting Wednesday, November 8, with the Rev. E. F. Cannon, pastor of the Norphlet Church in charge.

Also taking part in the revival will be Evangelist Walter Bailes, former radio entertainer who appeared with the West Virginia Home Folks and Grand Ole Opry, before his conversion to the ministry.

The district fellowship meeting will also convene here during the meeting.

Services start at 7:30 p. m. week days and 7:15 on Sunday night. The public is invited by the Rev. H. P. Hudspeth, pastor.

Former Resident of Washington Dies in Texas

D. H. Smedley, aged 55, a former resident of Washington, died yesterday in a veterans hospital at Big Springs, Texas.

Survivors include his widow, 8 children, Mrs. Herman Ray, of Hope, James and D. H. Smedley of Roswell, N.M., Mrs. D. D. Cain of Big Springs, Mrs. J. A. McKinney and Billy Smedley, Shirley and Danny Smedley of Snyder, Texas.

Labor Board Rules Against Arkansas Firm

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board today found the Ozark Hardwood company of Clarksville, Ark., had engaged in unfair labor practices by discharging 28 employees for union activity.

The company was ordered to reinstate 27 of the employees, pay them for time lost during their periods of discharge and cease hereafter from interfering with their membership in Local 373, General Drivers and Helpers, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America (AFL).

The ruling upheld, with modifications, an intermediate report issued several months ago by trial examiner Allen MacCullen.

The 28 employees were discharged in May, 1949, shortly after they had organized as a union local.

One employee was not ordered reimbursed for lost pay on the ground that he had been offered reinstatement but had refused it.

Russia Parades Military Might as Usual

By HENRY SHAPIRO

Moscow, Nov. 7 (UP)—Russia paraded its military might today and expressed sympathy for Korean Reds battling against "aggression."

The occasion was the 33rd anniversary of the Soviet revolution. Marshal Semion Budenny, who rose from a Czarist private to commander of the Red cavalry, excoriated Anglo-American "imperialists" in a speech before massed troops in Red square outside the Kremlin.

He spoke from the dias of Lenin's red granite mausoleum, flanked by Soviet Deputy Premier V. M. Molotov, Nikolai Bulganin, Marshal Klement Voroshilov, Amastas Mikoyan and other members of the politburo.

U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, British ambassador Sir David Kelly and other members of the diplomatic corps watched the ceremony from special logs just below the mausoleum.

Thundered Bunny. "The Anglo-American imperialists have now passed from preparations for aggression to direct acts of aggression, evidence of which is the bandit-like intervention of the United States in Korea."

"The Soviet people, together with other freedom-loving peoples of the world, brand with shame the American aggressors and express their sympathy for the Korean people, who are conducting a heroic struggle for the freedom and independence of their motherland."

Moscow was in a holiday mood for the celebration. Streets and buildings were decked with flags, red bunting and the portraits of members of the politburo and foreign Communist leaders.

The keynote of orders of the day to the Soviet army and navy was preparedness.

Soviet Army Minister A. M. Vassilevsky said in his order that "Anglo-American imperialists are pursuing a policy of unleashing a new world war."

Search Turns Up 7 Bodies Near Wreckage

Friars Point, Miss., Nov. 7 (AP)—A week of search has turned up seven bodies from or near the wreckage of a Mississippi river barge dredge sunk by a violent explosion.

Ed James of Caruthersville, Mo., part owner of the Mississippi Sand and Gravel company, reported recovery of three bodies yesterday.

An eighth man—Paul Godsey, Jr., 20, of Caruthersville—was still missing.

James identified the three bodies found as Earl C. Wallace, 32, Harry D. Fields, 67, and Richard Kurtz, 25 all of Caruthersville. Four other victims of the blast were found earlier in the week.

The rivermen were killed Oct. 30 in an explosion that occurred when an oil barge tied along side the dredge during a refueling operation.

Nearly 700 Votes Cast in City at 1 p. m. Tuesday

A check of five local boxes in Hope revealed almost 700 votes cast in the city at a few minutes after 1 p. m. This indicates the voting is unusually heavy for a general election.

Timing so as to catch insect pests at their most vulnerable stage is important in spraying.

National President of VFW Auxiliary Is Guest of the Local Organization

Mrs. George A. (Sue) Ilg, Edgewood, R. I., national president of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, discussed community service to some 160 persons last night at a banquet in her honor at Hope High School.

Mrs. Ilg completely captivated her audience in discussing the various programs of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the effect on all of the people.

Prior to the address the group dined in the school cafeteria and Fred Gresham served as master of ceremonies. The welcome address was by Mayor Lyle Brown.

Other notables at the speaker's table included, Mae Rosenbaum, El Dorado, past department president, Mrs. John Keck, president of the local auxiliary and Mr. Keck, Gertrude Mueller, state president, Commander Syvill Burke and Mrs. Burke, the Rev. Charles Chambers, Jr., St. Mark's Episcopal Church, and J. I. Lieb, long manager of the Hope Chamber of Commerce.

Recognition was made to Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ramsey and Mrs. Mae Cargile, parents of sons in whose memory the local Ramsey-Cargile Post was named. Mrs. Alva Reynerson furnished music during the dinner.

The local auxiliary presented Mrs. Lou Smith, president of the El Dorado Auxiliary with a gift—an aluminum tray contained the VFW Auxiliary emblem.

The banquet was served by the Hopewell Home Demonstration Club.

There were delegations from Little Rock, El Dorado, Magnolia, Lewisville and two department officers from the Texas post at Texarkana.

Following the speaking a reception was held at the organization's hut, east on Highway 67. The receiving line included Mrs. Fred Cook, Mrs. Jim McKenzie, Commander and Mrs. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. John Keck Mrs. Ilg, Mrs. Mueller, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gresham, Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mrs. Hinton Davis was in charge of the guest book.

Visitors were presented with small souvenir baseball bats which were donated by the Bruner-Ivory Hand Company.

Refreshments at the reception were in charge of Mrs. Edward Aslin, Mrs. Denver Hornaday and Mrs. Henry Fenwick. The hut was decorated with fall flowers carrying out a blue and gold color scheme.

The Machine Age Has Brought Many Angels of Mercy and the Helicopter Ranks Very High

By STAN SWINTON

For Hal Boyle

Wonsan airfield, Korea — (AP)—The machine age has developed its own angel of mercy: the helicopter.

The awkward flying windmill has proven its worth in Korea.

Time after time, marine, army and navy helicopters have rescued pilots shot down behind enemy lines or at sea. They have taken out whole out of units. They have carried wounded to safety by ambulance over rough roads would have meant death.

"Any military force without them today is back in the days of the Civil War," said leathery Brig. Gen. Edward Craig of the famed "fighting first" marine division.

Marines pioneered use of the helicopters. Marine observation squadron six, which flies them, has rescued 20 downed pilots and flown 200 wounded from the front.

"The helicopters have changed war in two ways," said the squadron commander, Maj. Vincent J. Gottschalk of Pontiac, Mich.

"The infantryman knows that being helplessly cut off doesn't mean he is going to be captured. The helicopter can pick him up. The same thing holds for pilots shot down at sea or over enemy territory. That's worked a wonderful change in morale."

"The second advantage is we can fly commanders right up to the front. They can make their decision with the whole battlefield beneath them. They are fresh, not tired from a long jeep ride and a climb to an observation post. That's helped the generals run an efficient war."

General Craig, agreeing, said "in any area not directly under fire even units on the regimental level should have helicopters."

Present models can stay in the air only four hours or so and can be shot down easily. Marine and other services are working on military types to be protected by armor plate and capable of carrying up to 10 passengers.

Civilian experts, such as Harry Nachlin of Bridgeport, Conn., representing the Sikorsky aircraft co., are with helicopter units in the field. They are studying future needs.

The outstanding single helicopter pilot has been Lt. Gus Lueddecke of Maplewood, N. J. He has made five rescues.

Lt. Robert Longstaff of Jersey City, N. J., has picked up three pilots on one during mission near Seoul.

Gottschalk, the university of Michigan graduate who commands the squadron, has had his own share of rescue work. Once he crashed behind enemy lines and had to be rescued by another helicopter.

Education Week Observed in Grade Schools

The grade schools of Hope District 1A are celebrating National Education Week. The theme is government of, for, and by the people.

The upper classes of grade schools, particularly at Oglesby, are discussing the daily topics. They are "Moral and Spiritual Values," "Responsibilities of the Citizen," "Meaning of the Ballot," "Urgent School Needs," "Opportunity for All," "Home, School, Community Teamwork," and "Freedom's Heritage."

Oglesby, Paisley, Fulton, Brookwood and Garland students are displaying classroom work. This will include many of the book materials made for National Book Week, Nov. 12-18.

The music classes are learning school songs, such as, "School Days," "School Song" and "America."

Since this is also National Cat Week, the students will learn about the care of cats. Friday at Brookwood the students will bring their cats to school and write stories about them.

The parents are invited to visit the schools at any time.

Lull in Ground War But Aerial Battles Furious At Manchurian Border

UN Confers on How to Handle Charges

Lake Success, Nov. 7 (AP)—United Nations diplomats conferred today on how to handle General MacArthur's charges that Communists China has sent her troops into Korea.

They have only 24 hours to make one of the most significant decisions in the history of the world organization. The security council meets in emergency session tomorrow morning to consider the charges.

There was the fear that World War III might erupt if they label the Chinese Reds aggressors and authorize U. N. military action to combat them. Such a war seemed inevitable if Russia supported her ally—the Communist government in Peking.

On the other hand was the knowledge that the world looked to the U. N. to take a clear-cut stand opposing aggression.

Diplomats, in the face of these alternatives, were puzzled. Two basic facts which could decisively sway their decisions were missing:

1. How deeply committed Red China is to the Korean war.

2. What Moscow's attitude would be in case of a war involving the United Nations against Communist China.

They sought a resolution to present to the security council, fulfilling the U. N.'s anti-aggression aims and yet not leading directly to an irrevocable war commitment.

Responsible diplomatic circles said last night that Western diplomats currently favor a restatement of the U. N.'s order for all states to refrain from giving aid to the North Koreans, without mentioning China by name.

Such a resolution as its only reference to China, would say, that it "took into account" the latest report from Gen. MacArthur about Chinese intervention. It also would contain a clause re-emphasizing U. N. determination to remove its troops from Korea as soon as possible.

Western governments, it is understood, are making every effort to avoid putting Red China into position where he would either be forced into open war or forced to acknowledge a retreat. They want to prevent all our war later.

The American position is said to be that real intervention is already a matter of record, but that it may be possible to get the Peking government out of Korea by diplomatic pressure rather than military action.

The U. S. is skeptical of the view, held by some other U. N. members, that Red troops are in Korea merely to guard the border power dams which are vital to Manchurian industry.

No Verdict on Mysterious Slaying

El Dorado, Nov. 7 (AP)—A coroner's inquest has cast little light on the mysterious slaying of an unidentified man in a wooded section near here.

The coroner's jury yesterday returned a formal verdict that the 30- to 35-year-old man died of a broken neck inflicted by "a party or parties unknown."

The body was found Sunday after Sheriff O. E. Bishop reported, two strange black dogs led residents of a nearby farmhouse to the scene. The night before neighbors had heard a disturbance in the wooded area some seven miles north of El Dorado.

The dogs, apparently companions of the slain man, stayed at the scene until they were penned up, Bishop said.

Belgians Deny Sending Arms to Red China

Brussels, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Belgian government and the country's largest munitions firm today denied Belgium is exporting arms to Communist China.

The denials followed an article yesterday by the Brussels government newspaper "La Cite" saying that $4,700,000 worth of machine guns and bullets have been exported to Mao Tse-tung's China during the first nine months of 1950.

The Belgian foreign ministry said in a carefully worded communique, "no arms shipments have been authorized."

Seoul, Nov. 7 (AP)—United Nations forces expanded their slim bridgehead north of the Chongchon river today as some Communists mysteriously withdrew on the northwest Korean waterfront.

Two U. S. 24th Division regiments and the British Commonwealth brigade moved ahead two one-fourth miles after a heavy air bombing in the Pakchon area northwest of the bridgehead at Anju. There was little opposition on this front although Red concentrations had applied heavy pressure as last Monday.

U. S. propeller-driven Mustang fighters routed speedier Russian-built jets in an 85-minute air battle—longest of the war—over Sinuiju just across the Yalu river from Manchuria. Three of the Red jets were reported hit. Spokesmen said no U. S. planes were lost.

In the north-central sector, Chinese Red resistance eased suddenly in front of U. S. marines driving through frigid mountain passes toward the Changlin reservoir.

The marines lead off seventh regiment, virtually stalled four days by the stiff Red Chinese defense, moved almost a mile up a twisting river gorge and seized a towering 4,000 foot ridge. This was the dominating point south of the reservoir, 36 miles northwest of Hamhung.

But Communist resistance mounted in one northeast sector. A U. S. Seventh division combat patrol north of Pungsan reported it was under attack "by a hell of a lot of North Koreans."

The patrol was on the north bank of the Ungi river. Carrier-based marine corsairs flew in to give air support.

This was the first serious opposition in three days for the division's 17th regimental combat team. It is driving north in two weather within less than 30 miles of the Manchurian border.

In the Pakchon area, advance Australian units on the Yalu met the only notable resistance when they routed 100 Red soldiers.

Allied warplanes began burning all villages to flush out Chinese Red soldiers.

U. S. First Cavalry division troops reported they had seen Chinese troops change into civilian clothes around in villages during the day while Allied planes buzzed overhead.

Communist dead with reversible uniforms were found in the Anju-Kunyu area. The uniforms were grey-green on one side, civilian white on the other.

Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers and light bombers rocketed, strafed and bombed all along the front and as far north as Kanggye, the Reds' frontier command center.

Teikochon, northeast of Anju, was hit hard.

The air force said 600 enemy troops were killed, and two tanks, five artillery pieces, 43 vehicles and six supply buildings destroyed.

Allied officers were perplexed at the Chinese withdrawal in an area where they had forced U. N. troops back as much as 50 miles. They speculated the Chinese either were regrouping for a large-scale attack or were deploying new lines.

In the latter event, officers said, it was possible the Chinese only intended to hold a buffer area guarding the Yalu river hydroelectric power grid, vital to Manchurian industry.

General MacArthur placed the issue of Chinese Red intervention in the Korea war before the United Nations Monday. The United States asked the U. N. security council to consider the matter Wednesday morning.

The air fight over the northwest corner of Korea began in mid-afternoon, the fifth air force said. Ninety-five minutes later propeller-driven U. S. F-51 Mustangs and swift jets were snarling at each other like angry hornets.

U. S. F-80 jet fighters were ordered into the fray which started over the Sinuiju area of North Korea across the Yalu river from Manchuria.

The Mustangs claimed hits on three of the Red jets which fled into Manchuria.

Four Russian-built jets were in the first attacking wave. They were described as MIG-15s, a late Russian model with swept back wings and reported speed around 670 miles per hour.

The American jets operating in Korea, Lockheed F-80 Shooting Stars, are slower.

In Tokyo, MacArthur's headquarters said it had no information that North Koreans had been trained to fly jets.

Red forces in the Chongchon river bridgehead area north of Anju withdrew after the U. S. 24th division counterattacked Monday. The Doughboys regained ground.

Simple Demand on China Is U. S. Aim

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—United States, stepping into the "ticking Korean clock," reported today, has demanded that the United Nations security council take action to force Communist China to cease its North Korean.

Informed officials told er this contingency, they are not including any charge of aggression and would not link the Peking Communist game with the dispatch of military units.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who advised the U. N. that these Chinese Red forces opposing his U. N. troops, remained unmoved, however. Dispatches from the front reported the Chinese were withdrawing at least limited scale in some sectors.

The state department, known to be consulting with non-Communist governments, proposed for U. N. action to avoid an immediate showdown with Chinese intervention.

This would be a "contingent" U. S. policy, which aimed at wiping out the past U. S. policy, which was taking any step which involved the tremendous loss of Communist China.

Gravely concerned over possible possibilities of a new Sino-American war, the U. S. made it plain that it would avoid any action now which might make it difficult for the U. S. to reverse its course.

These officials said it was entirely possible that the U. S. may limit their troops already across the border and even withdraw them. MacArthur will deal decisively with the before it worsens.

The proposal by Secretary of State Acheson, made in a telegram to Secretary of Defense, that an offer of Communist troops by China should be accepted by the U. N. is a proposal to end the fight against the North Reds was turned down on grounds that his division needed on Formosa, that last Nationalist island, hold against possible Red invasion.

Plane With 17 Aboard Is Overdue

Helena, Mont., Nov. 7 (AP)—Aeronautics Director Frank Taylor today said a Northwest Airlines plane, with 17 passengers and crew of four aboard, is overdue on a flight over the mountains between here and Butte.

The plane left this city at 10:30 a. m. for Butte, and the CAA tower said at 8:11 a. m. that the plane had not been seen since it was over Helena at 10:50 a. m. "It was about 10:50 a. m. that we last saw it," said the tower.

The weather bureau reported no clouds, light winds, and high, between 10,000 and 12,000 feet.

The CAA said all planes northwest of Helena were fully to raise the alarm hour and 30 minutes.

40 Million to Vote Over the Nation

By JACK BELL
AP Political Reporter

With the nation treading uneasy ground somewhere between war and peace, 40,000,000 or more voters decide today whether Democrats or Republicans will control congress in the two critical years ahead.

Signs pointed to close races in many of the states choosing 30 senators, 432 house members and 22 governors.

Maine elected a Republican governor and three house members in September. Heavy party majorities in southern and border states assured the Democrats of a nest egg of more than 100 house seats in practically uncontested elections.

With fair weather in sight for most of the nation, Republican leaders joined President Truman and other Democrats in urging a heavy turnout at the polls.

Republicans counted on a last-hour voter reaction to the confused Korean war situation to help provide the impetus for the ballot surge they seemed to need to gain a net of seven seats in the senate and 49 in the house for control of congress.

Senator Knowland R-Calif. voiced one GOP viewpoint with a demand on Secretary of State Acheson yesterday for acceptance of a Chinese nationalist offer made in July—33,000 ground troops to fight the Communists in Korea.

Asserting that Chinese Communists had invaded Korea to battle United Nations forces, Knowland said there no longer was any reason to bar the Nationalist on grounds that their entry into the war would provoke retaliation by the Chinese Reds.

Despite the possible threat of full-scale warfare with the Chinese Communists, President Truman said in a speech in Independence, Mo., that "the common victory against aggression in Korea is evidence that the free nations will not let communism swallow up free peoples one by one."

Earlier in a luncheon talk, the President promised that the United States "never again will run out on its responsibility for preservation of world peace."

The President, after voting in his home precinct in Independence, planned to return to Washington later in the day by plane.

In a speech accepting the gift to Independence of a Liberty Bell from Amnezy, France, Mr. Truman praised what he said was the Democratic administration's contribution to the American concept of freedom.

He said the Democrats had "put agriculture on a stable basis," 2) had "brought a new element of democracy into our industrial life through collective bargaining," 3) had "established a basic security against unemployment and old age" 4) had "preserved and developed our natural resources for the benefit of all."

"There are some people who will tell you that freedom is endangered by the farm program or by the public development of natural resources or by social security," he said.

"Those people are wrong. Such things bring justice and opportunity into our economic life. They are the reason why our country is stronger and more prosperous today than it has ever been before in our history."

The President implied he thought a light vote would help Republican candidates. He said was "a disturbing thing that only one out of three eligible voters took the trouble to vote in the last mid-year election in 1946." The Republicans won control of congress in that election only to lose both houses again in 1948.

The GOP's chance of regaining control in today's voting appeared to hinge on the outcome of close races in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Utah.

Fourteen senate seats are involved in voting in those states eight of them now held by Democrats and six by Republicans. A clean sweep would give the GOP one more than it needs for control of the senate. With 50 m.c. others, the same states could provide the necessary gain in house seats for GOP control of that body.

The Republicans apparently had only secondary hopes of picking up Democratic seats in such states as Kentucky, Maryland, Oklahoma and Washington.

and Miami Gambler Jack Friedlander were charged with paying $100 a week bribes to five deputy sheriffs. The deputies and a sixth officer also were indicted.

The senate committee released a letter written by Philadelphia office Superintendent George F. Richardson who charged that Stromberg has "connections with the underworld through the entire nation."

"Nig Rosen Stromberg" controls a large part of the gambling, number lotteries and horse and sports betting in the Philadelphia area," Richardson said. Stromberg denied the charge.

Witnesses to Testify in Shooting

Washington, Nov. 7 — UP — The government revealed today that 2 witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify before a federal grand jury meeting tomorrow on the attempted assassination of President Truman.

Assistant U. S. Attorney John W. Fihely said most of the witnesses will be White House policemen, secret service agents and onlookers to last week's Blair House shooting.

Government prosecutors will recommend that Oscar Collazo, Puerto Rican gunman who was wounded in the battle, be indicted for first degree murder in the slaying of White House Guard Leslie Coffelt.

The jury also may bring murder indictments against others involved in the conspiracy, including Collazo's wife and the widow of Grisello Torresola, Collazo's slain confederate.

Federal Judge Edward A. Tamm promised to appoint a lawyer today to defend Collazo. Tamm's choice was not known.

But he agreed to appoint a defense attorney after prosecutors and Washington Lawyer William E. Leahy, who was named as "officer of the court" to advise Collazo of his legal rights, advised that neither the Puerto Rican Nationalist nor his wife had the money to hire one.

Government prosecutors hope to begin the Collazo's trial within 30 days.

Normal 'Phone Service in St. Louis

St. Louis, Nov. 7 — AP — Telephone service was normal in St. Louis today despite continuation of a union-company squabble that led to a two-day walkout of some 5,000 Southwestern Bell employees in the city late last week.

The bitter dispute led last night to charges by the CIO Communications workers that the utility was trying to force an election-day strike to help Republican Senator Forrest C. Donnell of Missouri in his bid for re-election.

The company called the charges absurd.

Frank P. Lonergan, vice president of Division 20 of the C. W. A., which represent some 50,000 Southwestern Bell employees in five states, said the union was making every effort to keep the workers on the job.

"But it's going to be hard in the face of the company's plan," Lonergan said. "The company hoped to have us out on election day. They figured it might help Don-

Assassin's Body to Be Turned Over to Parents

New York, Nov. 7 (AP) — The body of Grisello Torresola, attempted assassin of President Truman, will be flown to Puerto Rico tomorrow and turned over to his parents.

The body was brought here yesterday from Washington and neil and that the public might react in their favor."

Donnell is a supporter of the Taft-Harley act, and organized labor in Missouri has worked for his defeat. The company suspended 15 employees yesterday for refusing to pick up telephone maintenance materials. The union contended the employees, members of the union, would have had to cross a picket line to get the materials.

The picket line was established by CWA members on strike against Western Electric Co. in St. Louis. The Western Electric workers walked out last week in protest against lack of progress in national negotiations between the union and Western Electric, the equipment affiliate of the Bell Telephone system.

It was the company's suspension of six employees in similar dispute that led to a walkout of the telephone workers here Friday and Saturday. The walkout was called off by the union Saturday night.

taken at once to a Brooklyn funeral home.
It was placed in a glass-lined steel casket costing $1,600.
Torresola was killed last Wednesday in a gun battle with presidential guards.

Torresola's nephew, Rafael Perez, 27-year-old New Yorker, said only relatives will view the body during its stay here. It was expected that the dead man's young widow, Carmen Delores, would be allowed to view the body. She is being held in the women's house of detention in $50,000 bail on the charge of sharing in the conspiracy leading to the assassination attempt.

Christmas is still celebrated on January 6, the ages-old Twelfth Night, by residents of Rodanthe, small village on Hatteras Island off North Carolina.

HE CAME TO KILL

by ADELIN M'ELFRESH

Copyright 1939 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: When Aunt Maggie Thorne is murdered, suspicion points to Peter, her nephew, who arrived home on the eve of the crime. "There is an attempt to kill Maggie's sister Agatha, no one, not even Peter's brother Jasper, nor Jasper's wife Leana, seems to be telling all he knows. After the inquest, Leana, the victim's sister, tells Peter the truth following her visit to her, but Deputy Sheriff Matt Preston arrives at the opportune moment. Enter the housekeeper, Cynthia Carstairs, tells Leana of Peter's attempt to murder a master key on the night of the crime, and how Peter bribed her to forget his request that Peter's sister Leana in the act of applying on him through the ransom of his door.

XX

TERRIFIED, and as though hypnotized by the leashed anger in Peter's eyes, Leana stepped off the chair. She would not go into that room! She backed away, but Peter was quicker. Fingers closed about her wrist.

"Don't be a fool!" he hissed. "I wanted to kill you." He broke off, shrugging. His hands fell away from her wrist. "Go if you like, Leana, but I'd like to talk to you." Leana stepped past him into the room. Peter followed her, stood for a moment with his hand on the knob, and closed the door. Then, smiling faintly, he handed the key to her.

"I'm not afraid of you, Peter. Keep your key."

He put it on the bureau and returned to stand beside her. "So you're not afraid of me?" he said thoughtfully. "But you think I killed Aunt Margaret, tried to kill Aunt Agatha—and you?"

"I didn't say that."

"You don't have to say it." He was looking at her steadily, his face carefully expressionless. Leana fought to subdue the rising fear; it mustn't show.

She forced a smile. "Don't be silly, Peter. Mart sent me to find you. He wants to—talk things over with you. He knows I'm here."

"Does he?" Peter shook his head. "It's not go, Leana. I told you once your fear showed all over you—remember? Well, it still does. You were spying on me. You wanted to search my room to find evidence that would convict me. Well—" he gestured broadly—"go on. Search."

He seated himself on a straight chair by the door, nodded toward the bureau and said: "You might begin there."

SUDDENLY infuriated that he should treat her so childishly, Leana yanked open the top bureau drawer. Socks were there, meticulously arranged according to color. So were handkerchiefs. She went on to the other drawers. Let Peter Thorne laugh up the other sleeve if he thought she wouldn't search his confounded bureau! Her probing fingers encountered paper.

She went on with her methodical search, hoping that Peter's watchful eyes had not noted the momentary hesitation. She pushed the last drawer shut with an intentional bang.

"Don't think you've fooled me, cousin," he said soberly. "You found it, didn't you?"

Dismayed, Leana nodded. "And you're trying to tell your copper boyfriend. Or come back later, yourself. I'll save you the trouble. Get the package."

Obediently, Leana took it from the drawer. When Peter said "Open it!" sternly, she did.

Gleaming with a million fires imprisoned in one large stone and half a dozen smaller ones ranged around it, was the lavaliere—the Thorne family heirloom.

Leana stared at it. "But—but I thought Peter said—"

"Sandra," Peter said softly, "underestimated my contact with New York's off-color business world, my dear cousin. The old gent who let her have 25 C's recognized it—cheaply, I must admit, because I had pawned it once before—and called me! He knew Sandra from the old days, too. People like Sandra and me borrow on our baubles quite often."

Leana lifted her eyes reluctantly from Miss Aggie's jewel. It was hard to believe Peter ever had gone hungry. He looked much too suave.

She said, "Why didn't you come home?"

"And be like under Aunt Margaret's feet—like Jasper? Oh, no, thank you, not me! Not," bitterly, "when there's a woods full of suckers in New York."

This is the Peter Thorne I hate, Leana thought, her fingers closing about the delicate gold chain of the lavaliere. This is the Peter who could do murder—if it benefited him.

"Aunt Maggie wondered why you came this time. Even Sandra was surprised," Leana recalled Sandra's taunting greeting.

PETER stopped his pacing to stand beside her. "I've been talking far too much, but I'm trying to convince you I did not kill Aunt Margaret. I'm not quite sure, understand, but—" He hesitated; then, "I think, Leana, I know what I did."

Leana held her breath. If only Mart were here! Or—anybody. She didn't want to be alone with Peter any longer. The burning intensity of his manner was terrifying.

"You won't believe me, cousin," he said, coming closer. "You won't think it possible—none of them will—but I—" He drew back. "Leana, did you hear something?"

Leana didn't. She shook her head.

Peter sprang to the door, jerked it open. But the hall was empty. He came back, shaking his head. "Someone was there, listening! I heard him, I'm sure of it!"

Crossing swiftly to her side, he closed her fingers about the lavaliere. "Keep it, Leana. When this is over, give it to Aunt Agatha. Not before, understand?"

Dumbfounded, she agreed. "And don't go on suspecting me," he pleaded. "I didn't have a chance to kill her. She was ready when I went."

DOROTHY DIX

Bad Manager

Dear Miss Dix: I am engaged to a young man whom I love very dearly. We agreed to save our money in separate accounts so as to be able to furnish our home when we are married. I saved mine, but the other day he told me that he had saved nothing, that his money had just all gone through mismanagement. He admits that he is no "manager" and has offered me full control of the money he earns after we are married. What shall I do—go on with the marriage and make up as best I can for the money he should have saved, and didn't, toward establishing a home, or break off with my fiancé?

Answer: You can't put a cash value on love and regard for your engagement for no other reason than that your fiancé has holes in his pockets. You would always regret it if you did, though I'll admit that there are few faults that a man can have that are more aggravating to his wife than just to be wasteful with his money.

Is He Sincere?
So you are wise to consider the matter of marrying a spendthrift very seriously, and your decision should depend largely upon your opinion of how sincere he is about letting you manage the family finances after the marriage. If he is really and truly going to turn over his pay envelope to you, well and good, but if his promise to make you secretary of the home treasury is not a campaign promise, then it is just a good deal of waste of your life. You will spend the balance of your life bawling and weeping with bill collectors and wondering where the next month's rent is coming from, and that is not a pleasant prospect for any woman to look forward to.

Curiously enough the ability to make money and the ability to spend it wisely or save it are not the same talent, and many a man who is a good money earner is totally incapable of caring for what he makes. Sometimes he is a spender and wastes it in buying foolishness. Sometimes he is an easy mark for every grafter and deadbeat who comes his way. Sometimes it just slips through his fingers without his ever knowing where it went.

Generosity, impulsiveness, warm-heartedness, optimism, the very qualities that make a man a warmer also makes him lovable. But they do not make him a desirable husband, because in the end it is the wife and children who have to pay for the husband's and father's lack of thrift.

Betty Imogene Box Becomes Bride of Charles Kennedy

Miss Betty Imogene Box, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Box, Smackover, Ark., became the bride of Charles Frederick Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Kennedy, Hope, Thursday, November 2, in the First Baptist church of Smackover.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Dale F. Taylor before an altar formed by two large baskets of white gladioli.

The bride wore a brown suit with dark brown accessories and carried a white bible covered with garters. The maid of honor, Miss Ann McKenzie, was dressed in a grey suit with black accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of white mums.

Bill Grace, Pine Bluff, served as best man.

Out of town guests for the wedding ceremony were, Miss Helen Barksdale, Prescott, Jim Pratt, New Orleans, and Miss Patsy Roberts, Hope.

After a wedding trip to Hot Springs the couple will return to Arkadelphia where the groom is attending Henderson State Teachers college.

Branch Admitted: Mrs. W. D. Buerklin, Garland.

Julia Chester Admitted: Thomas Lynn Phillips McCaskill.

Discharged: M. M. Cornelius, Hope; Jesse Givens, Hope; Mrs. R. F. Salsberry, Saratoga.

Josephine Admitted: Mrs. Sam Atkins, Hope.

Dear Miss Dix: I should be greatly interested in knowing your reaction to a gum-chewing, gum-popping young woman who works in a public office where many others have to work, and where many callers are required to sit in the anteroom where the acoustics permit the gum-chewing to be heard with disturbing clarity.

The young lady, whose voice has a rasping quality that carries it to the far ends of the office, also bursts into song between the fits of gum-popping. Am I correct in believing that a public office should be conducted with dignity and that gum-chewing and gum-popping and singing should be confined to the home where one is surrounded by forgiving friends? My idea of gum-chewing, is that one should lock all the doors of one's private room and then crawl under the bed or lock oneself in the closet and hide behind the clothes, then chew diligently if desired. K.W.

Answer: And me, too, brother. I think that gum-chewing and popping should be a secret vice, conducted in strict privacy, and that a public office is no suitable place in which to indulge in an orgy of either clamping the jaws or exercising the vocal organs.

Considering that most of us spend a considerable portion of our time waiting around in doctors' offices, dentists' offices, the outer offices of men who are always in conference and public offices generally it does seem to me that the long-drawn-out torture could be lessened by instituting a few reforms.

For one thing, the gum-popper and the singer could be silenced. For another the reading matter with which one is supposed to so-lace one's sufferings, could be brought up within a year of date.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a man 33 years old. Have been going with a girl for three years. Am not in love with her and never will be.

Arkansas Voting Is Heavy Despite Some Rain

By The Associated Press

General election voting in Arkansas, usually little more than a formality, was reported here Tuesday despite rain and threats of rain in some sections.

The high interest was attributed to controversial referenda on the ballot as few offices, state or local, were contested.

Among cities reporting large turnouts at the polls before noon were Little Rock, North Little Rock, Blytheville, Rogers, Jonesboro, Fort Smith, Texarkana, Paragould and Fayetteville.

Not a single point reported a light vote but there was no word from rural areas.

There was light to heavy rain in east Arkansas. Cloudy skies were general.

Boting was delayed an hour and a half at Lonoke when the election judges and clerks failed to show up. Frantic election commissioners and the county clerk hastily enlisted volunteers to serve as officials and ballots were handed to waiting electors.

Arkansan Awarded

Tokyo, Nov. 7 — (P) — An Arkansan with the U. S. First cavalry division in Korea has been awarded the Silver Star medal.

He is Lt. Lewis T. Harrison, Jr., Arkadelphia. Harrison was cited for rallying his platoon against an infiltration attack near Kumcheon Aug. 2.

The collecting of contemporary and antique Wheeling glassware, made since 1819 in the Upper Ohio River Valley area surrounding Wheeling, West Virginia, has brought fame to this handmade American glassware.

Otherwise this girl will get you. Before you know it you will find yourself tied down for life to a woman whom you will hate more and more as you realize how she has outwitted you and taken you in.

Milestone in a Career!

We see it happen over and over again—and it's one of the greatest satisfactions we enjoy in this happy business of selling Cadillac cars.

It's when a man comes into possession of his first Cadillac—and we see the wonderful things it does for him.

We see his happiness as he places his order—not as the result of a sudden inspiration, but because he has gradually reached the conclusion that he has earned the right to enjoy the unquestioned best.

And then we see him on that happy day when his car is available for delivery—and he settles himself so proudly behind the wheel.

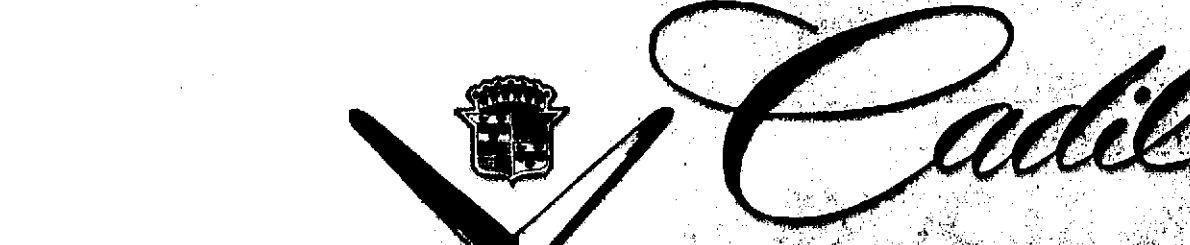

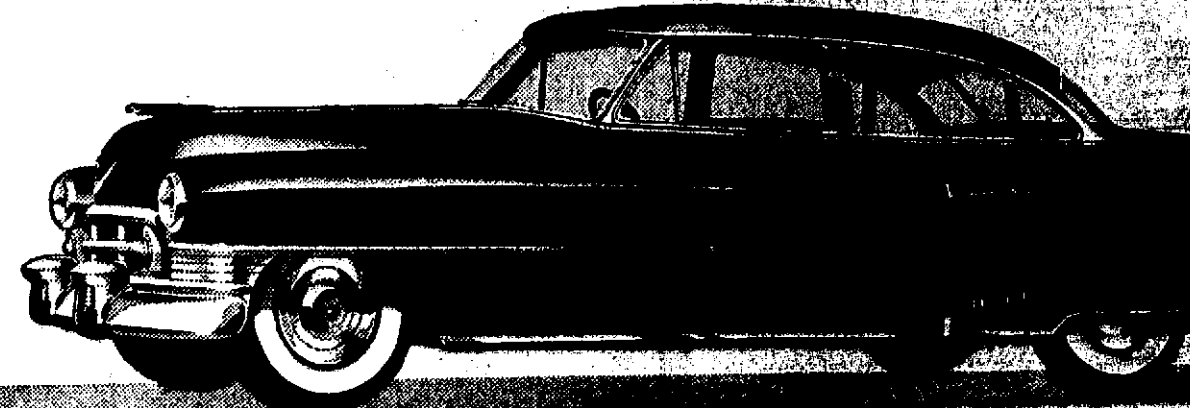

He's a little quizzical, we sometimes note. Could it be, he wonders, that he has been anticipating a bit too much? And then he's out in the street—headed for home the long way 'round.

Those are thrilling days that follow. There's the first long ride with the family... the first trip to the office... and the time he learns, in an emergency, that his car is worth its whole price in safety alone.

And then, almost before he knows it, the odometer registers a thousand miles—and he's back to tell us all about it. And, perhaps, to grumble a little bit at giving it up—even for a little while!

Yes, it's a priceless privilege to watch all this. Make a man feel that he's doing good.

Rickey Will Try to Lift Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7. — Branch Rickey, generally regarded as baseball's shrewdest executive, has a brand new challenge today — lifting the Pittsburgh Pirates out of the National League cellar.

Rickey is the new vice president and general manager of the Bucs — a team that hasn't won a pennant since 1927.

The 68-year-old man with the bushy eyebrows and fat cigar didn't bat an eye yesterday, when Pirate President John Galbreath told a news conference the rumors about Rickey coming to the Bucs were true.

A little later, when congratulatory remarks were being passed around, Rickey beamed as only Rickey can.

Some of the details filtered out. Rickey has a five-year contract at an unannounced salary. There's a clause permitting him to extend the contract another five years.

What will happen to the club's present general manager, portly Roy Hamey?

Well, Rickey isn't prepared to say at the moment, but he smiled and added:

"I'm not familiar with the titles in the club's corporate structure. I'll be sure I see nothing wrong with having two or three general managers."

Roy will continue to do much the same job as he has in the past, concentrating on players. My son Branch Rickey, Jr., will have a similar responsibility.

Young Rickey has been associated with his father several years and was expected to go along after the "Mahatma" resigned last week as president and general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Rickey's coming to Pittsburgh has been in the rumor stage for months.

Army Regains Top Spot in Grid Ranks

New York, Nov. 7. — The question of who has the best college football team in the country probably never has been more widely debated than right now.

Twelve teams received first place votes in today's latest Associated Press poll, which saw Army recapture the No. 1 position from Southern Methodist.

But the Cadets, who led the rankings until replaced by the Southwesterners two weeks ago, didn't go to the top on a wave of overwhelming national acclaim.

They received only 88 of the 314 first place votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters. That was six fewer than lavished on once-beaten Ohio State, which moved up from fourth to second.

Nine of the ten top teams — all but tenth-ranked Illinois — were rated first by from two to 94 voters. Three in the lower brackets received top mention.

Here's a college football's new first ten:

Army, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Texas, California, Southern Methodist, Princeton, Miami (Fla.), Illinois.

Oklahoma, which has a modern record 27-game winning streak going, received 48 first place votes while unbeaten Kentucky got 35. California was given 14, Texas 11, Miami 8, Princeton 4 and SMU 2.

Clemson, the 13th ranking eleven, polled seven No. 1 votes, unbeaten Wyoming, two and South Carolina one.

The standings are figures on the basis of ten points for first, nine for second, etc.

The surge of Ohio State featured the latest balloting. The Buckeyes, who have bounced back from an opening game loss to SMU to smother five foes, barely were beaten out of first place.

They received 2,402 points compared with 2,451 for Army. Five more No. 1 votes would have put them on top.

The Buckeyes, who walloped Northwestern Saturday, 32-0, will meet Wisconsin next.

Army, 28-13 conqueror of Penn, has a breather this week in New Mexico while the other ranking elevens have it fairly rugged.

The voting, with first place

SPORTS ROUNDUP

New York, Nov. 7. — Big George Mikan, the most prolific scorer in pro basketball history, claims he'd like to try playing forward instead of in the pivot spot.

"Those forwards get a chance to shoot a lot," George explains. "Mikan only averaged 27 points a game last season. What does he want?"

At least George still is going strong while such stars as Ed Sadowski, Dutch Schaefer, Fuzzy Levane, Mac Otten and Leo Klier have been dropped within the past week or so.

Any nominations for Gustavus Adolphus as the No. 1 college football team? The Gusties have won nine straight games.

It's Goad, Not Goat Bobby Goad, Oklahoma U. right end for the past three seasons went into the coaching business this year and developed an all-winning team won six, tied one at last report at Chickasha, Okla., high school.

That earned him a visit from an Oklahoma City sports writer who asked: "How do you like coaching?"

Before Bobby could answer, Mrs. Goad got in the first — and last — word: "It's nice, if you like living dangerously."

One-Minute Sports Page Big Ten basketball scheduled this season show 20 intercollegiate games for the ten teams.

In 1940, when Buzzie Bavasi, now Dodger veeep, was business manager at Americus, Ga., he had to play second base for four games because of player shortages.

He hit .333. . . . Bernie Bernstein New York boxing manager, hands out cards that show he sells custom clothing on the side.

Or is it vice versa? . . . El Mono, winner of the McLennan and Widener handicaps two years ago, is slated for a comeback in Florida this winter.

Indiana footballers think alumnus Hoagy Carmichael came up with one of his sweetest compositions after the Notre Dame game when he wired them: "Just great. Loves ya all." No telegrams after Illinois and Michigan State.

Expert Coaching At the Hall-of-Fame football game Saturday, Ken Strong gave a place-kicking exhibition during the intermission.

He was a bit rusty and his first couple tries did from the ten yard line, were wide.

Then he found the old groove and sent one squarely between the uprights.

Ken, Jr., who was holding the ball for him, looked up and grinned: "O K, dad, let's move back."

Dot's All, Brothers The Virginia Military Institute football mascot is a small kangaroo. But so far he hasn't shown them how to get the jump on the opposition.

The New York Yockeys have come up with a key player composed of Goolie Julius Boomer, Rodzinyak, Steve Brklacich and Ray Oleksuk.

It's an impenetrable as well as unpronounceable defense.

Juniors Win 19-6 From Magnolia

Last night at the high school the local Junior Bobkittens handily licked the Magnolia Junior "Tomies" by a 19 to 6 score. It was the first meeting of the two squads.

Friday night the Yerger Tigers have a tough foe in Dunbar High of Little Rock in the local high school stadium.

Also on Friday night the Hope Bobcats are likely to get back in the win column when they journey to Arkadelphia for a contest with the Badgers. So far the Badgers haven't won a contest this season.

Would You Like to Wager in SW Loop?

Dallas, Nov. 7. — So you think Texas is on the way to the Cotton bowl.

Listen, pal, it's the Southwest conference you're talking about now. What happens in this wild, unruly circuit is a scandal to the woodpeckers.

It's about the screwiest football on earth. Texas is riding high. It's undefeated in conference play and has hurred the team that was supposed to be toughest — Southern Methodist.

Ahead are Baylor, which has been beaten twice this season; Texas Christian, which has lost four, and Texas A. and M., which has lost two.

Texas has to beat those three teams to be sure of the conference title and the automatic host roll in the Cotton bowl.

Think it's easy, huh? Past history in the hurly-burly Southwest indicates there's nothing easy.

Some records of the current season will show you what can be expected.

Arkansas beat Baylor 27-6. Baylor beat Texas A. and M. 27-20.

Around the Arkansas Sports Loop

By CARL BELL
Little Rock, Nov. 7. — Arkansas Razorbacks can follow two courses this week as an aftermath of the shellacking Texas A. & M. gave them.

Either they can be so good they'll fall to pieces or they can be so fighting mad they'll tear up the Rice Owls.

Coach Otis Douglas is inclined to believe they'll be fighting mad. While definitely not one to see defeats as blessings in disguise, Doug says:

"Maybe a licking like the Aggies gave us is what we needed to give us the fighting spirit we've needed but haven't had all season."

Until last Saturday night the Razorbacks had been beating themselves with mistakes and undoubtedly had sapped their confidence while not building up any fight.

One thing will be in Arkansas' favor Saturday. It will be back on the home field at Fayetteville before a homecoming crowd.

Homecoming often inspires a team to otherwise unobtainable heights. The Porkers haven't been whipped at Fayetteville since homecoming of two years ago when the came within five seconds and two points of upsetting mighty Southern Methodist.

"That is what makes football so interesting," observes Bell. "Nobody ever knows what's going to happen."

Your Big Opportunity to WIN A SCHOLARSHIP to the College of your choice

Second Lion Oil Essay Contest Closes November 15 ONLY A FEW DAYS LEFT TO ENTER

The Lion Oil Scholarship Fund is awarding scholarships and cash as prizes in a series of six essay contests open to high school students in the Southern areas listed at the right.

Entries in the first contest are now being judged. The second monthly contest is now in progress. Entries must be postmarked no later than midnight of November 15. The essay subject for this contest is . . .

"Why a College Education is Important"

If a high school student's essay wins first place in any of the six monthly contests, the student wins a one-year scholarship (cash value $1,000.00) to any accredited college or university of his choice. Second prize each month is $100 cash, and third prize is $50 cash.

In addition, the winner of each of the six monthly contests is automatically entered in competition for the Grand Prize of an additional three-year scholarship (cash value $3,000.00). Thus, the student who wins the Grand Prize will win scholarships for all four years of college . . . scholarships worth $4,000.00.

HOW TO ENTER

A high school student simply writes an essay in 500 words or less, gets the essay approved and signed by one of his or her teachers, and sends it to:

LION OIL SCHOLARSHIP FUND, Lion Oil Company, El Dorado, Ark.

Remember, the second contest closes November 15, 1950. By all means submit an entry. The subject for each of the other four essay contests will be announced prior to each contest.

YOUR TEACHER WINS, TOO

The teacher who approves a first or second place winner in any monthly contest wins $100 cash, or a third place winner, $50 cash. An additional $300 cash will go to the teacher who approved the Grand Prize winner.

JUDGING

Essays will be judged for:

- (1) Interest and originality
- (2) Excellence and clarity of presentation
- (3) Neatness

Judges will be educational leaders selected from various Southern universities and colleges.

RULES ARE SIMPLE . . . OPPORTUNITIES ARE GREAT

For a free copy of the Official Rules and full details of these contests, ask your teacher or high school principal . . . or write to the Lion Oil Scholarship Fund.
